LEGAL DUE DILIGENCE REPORT

Project Harbor — Tindale Precision Coatings Limited

Strictly private and confidential | Prepared for Crestview Capital LLP | 24 November 2025

Executive summary

This report summarises the findings of our legal due diligence on Tindale Precision Coatings Limited (the "Company"), a Coventry-based manufacturer of thermal-spray and specialist surface coatings serving aerospace, energy and industrial customers. Our review covered corporate, commercial, property, employment, intellectual property, environmental and litigation matters, based on the documents made available in the data room to 21 November 2025 and the replies to our enquiries. We have not identified any issue that, in our view, is a deal-breaker, but we draw attention below to the matters that should be addressed through specific warranty or indemnity protection, conditions, or price adjustment.

Key findings and recommendations

Corporate. The Company is validly incorporated; the issued share capital is 1,000,000 ordinary shares of £1.00 held 60/25/15 by the Sellers. The statutory registers are in order. No subsisting options or encumbrances over the shares, subject to release of an existing debenture in favour of the Company's clearing bank at completion.

Customer change of control (HIGH). The master coating services agreement with Caldera Mobility Systems plc (c.18% of FY2025 turnover) contains a change-of-control termination right exercisable on 60 days' notice. We recommend a specific warranty and, ideally, a pre-completion waiver from the customer. The Sellers have approached the customer but no written waiver has yet been obtained.

Single-source supply (MEDIUM). A specialist tungsten-carbide feedstock is single-sourced from Reyland Fine Chemicals Limited. Second-source qualification is in progress. Recommend a warranty as to the absence of supply notices and disclosure of the qualification status.

Intellectual property (MEDIUM). Core coating know-how is held as confidential know-how, not patented. The "TINDALE" and "PRECISIONCOAT" UK trade marks are registered to the Company. Recommend warranties on ownership, confidentiality controls and absence of third-party infringement claims.

Environmental (MEDIUM). The Company holds the requisite environmental permit for its thermal-spray operations. A March 2025 inspection raised a minor record-keeping non-conformity, since remedied. Recommend an environmental warranty and review of historic permit compliance.

Employment (LOW). Standard contracts; one intimated (un-issued) unfair dismissal claim by a former employee, considered without merit. Recommend a litigation warranty and disclosure.

Tax (LOW/MEDIUM). R&D; tax relief claimed for FY2023-2025; no HMRC enquiry to date. Recommend tax covenant protection (as drafted) and disclosure of the claims.

Property (LOW). The principal site at Brookmill Works is held freehold with good and marketable title; a small ancillary unit is leasehold with c.6 years unexpired. No material title defects identified.

Conclusion

Subject to the matters above being addressed through the disclosure process and the agreed warranty, tax covenant, retention and earn-out package, we consider the Company a sound acquisition. We recommend that the retention of £3,790,000 (10% of the Initial Consideration) and the 18-month warranty claim period provide adequate protection in the context of the negotiated 20% liability cap.
